

Debate Korea, China

UN General Session Opens This Afternoon With Soviet and West In Bitter Fighting

BULLETIN

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (P)—Russia's Andrei Vishinsky today demanded that Red China be given a seat in the United Nations immediately. The Soviet delegate took the floor ten minutes after the 60-nation General Assembly opened its eighth session.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (P)—Russia and the Western powers squared off for 12 weeks of bitter fighting today as the U.N. General Assembly gathered again to debate such issues as Korea and the seating of Red China in the world organization.

As the diplomats assembled for the opening this afternoon (2 p.m. EST) of their eighth annual session, Western delegates were confident the 60-nation body would sidetrack the Chinese question for the remainder of this year at least.

They also believed the Assembly would stand pat on its previous recommendation that the Korean peace conference be a two-sided negotiation rather than a round-table of belligerents and neutrals.

There was no indication just when Soviet Delegate Andrei Y. Vishinsky would bring up these two issues, but he was expected to raise them within the first few days of the session.

This afternoon's meeting was scheduled to be devoted to the election of an Assembly president, seven vice presidents and seven committee chairmen who will constitute the powerful steering committee.

The colorful sister of India's Prime Minister Nehru, Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, was reported to have enough support for election as president, but Prince Wan Waihayakon of Thailand still was in the race. Mrs. Pandit had the support of both the Soviet bloc and the leading Western powers, including the United States.

The first fight over the China representation question may come in the credentials committee, which probably will meet Wednesday. That body would report back to the assembly itself, opening the way for a decision.

The United States and Britain already have agreed to back a move to postpone all consideration of the China representation question during 1953. They believe that most countries outside the Soviet bloc will support this.

The seating of Red China is closely linked with the Korean peace conference, since the Peking regime was one of the belligerents in Korea and one of the proposed participants in the peace parley. The United States and some others take the position that no action must be taken until the Chinese Reds prove themselves worthy of a U.N. seat.

The first clash over the Korean question probably will come in the steering committee when that body starts considering the allocation of items to the Assembly's major committees. Although this question is sure to go to the Political Committee, Vishinsky may provoke a debate by demanding priority for it.

The Korean question already is on the Assembly's agenda, so discussion is assured. The United States and its friends are prepared, however, to urge the Assembly to delay the question until the U.N. shows that it is ready to act on its own.

Vishinsky is expected to demand approval of Red China's latest proposal that the conference be transformed into a round-table affair, with Russia, India, Burma, Pakistan and Indonesia invited in addition to the belligerents. A similar Soviet proposal was overwhelmingly rejected last month.

McCarthy Says 'High Official' In U. N. Admits Tie to Reds

NEW YORK (P)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) said today a "high official" of the United Nations secretariat—an American—has admitted contributing to Communist front organizations. The man was a witness today before McCarthy's Senate investigations subcommittee. His testimony was reported by McCarthy during a recess of the closed hearing.

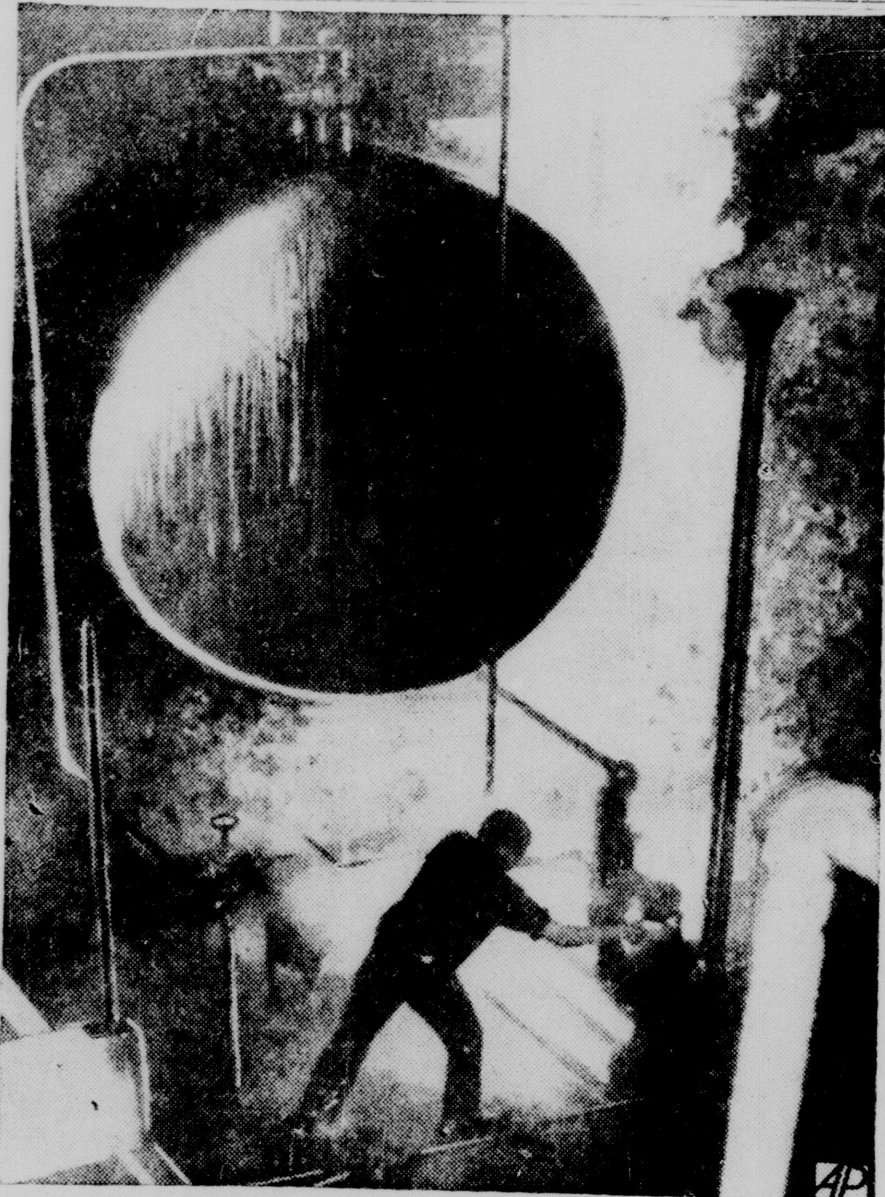

Fall Better Hurry

A week from today will be the first full day of fall, but the autumn season had better hurry on its way else none of us would be convinced it had come in the midst of this July-in-September heat wave.

Fair tonight and Wednesday. Low tonight near 50 and high Wednesday in the 80s.

The temperature at 7 a. m. was 54, 39 at 1 p. m., and 90 at 2 p. m. One year ago today here high 84, low 47. Two years ago high 75, low 56. Rainfall .02 inch.

Stage at Lake of the Ozarks: 12.4, steady.

May Answer Our Demand For More PWs

Joint Group Meets Tomorrow Morning For Possible Reply

MUNSAN, Korea (P)—The Communists may answer tomorrow afternoon demands for an accounting of more than 3,000 U. N. military personnel, including 944 Americans, believed still in Red captivity.

The Joint Military Armistice Commission scheduled a meeting for 11 a. m. tomorrow (9 p. m. EST tonight), its first since the names of the missing men were turned over with the demand for a prompt accounting.

A U. N. spokesman said there was no way of knowing whether a reply was forthcoming. The Communists, at the last commission meeting, said they would comment later.

In sharp contrast to previous displays of violence, 2,000 anti-Communist North Korean and Chinese prisoners were turned over to Indian custody in the Panmunjom neutral zone without incident. The delivery went off smoothly as the Indian troops—who for six days have checked disturbances by the prisoners—took extra precautions to avoid outbreaks.

They moved Allied and Communist observers farther away from the compounds housing the POWs and removed them from stations at some processing centers. The number of newsmen from each side allowed to watch the transfers was cut from 25 to 5 for each side.

When the North Koreans arrived at the compounds fellow countrymen delivered earlier cheered in unison and waved South Korean flags.

They also broke out banners reading, "all anti-Communist youth! killing all Reds is the road to freedom and peace of the world."

Other banners, taunting Red agents on hand to attempt to convince the POWs to return, read: "Red explainers, now is the time for you to turn out as anti-Communist if you want freedom."

The prisoners were part of 8,000 North Korean and 14,700 Chinese POWs who refused repatriation. Nine North Koreans who had a change of heart after delivery to the Indians were turned over to the Communists for return to Red-run North Korea.

The Communists gave the transfer the full propaganda treatment. About 75 North Korean and Chinese officers plus a score or more Red correspondents applauded loudly throughout the 10 minute ceremony.

The top Communist delegate to the military armistice commission, Lt. Gen. Lee Sang Cho, questioned the nine on their treatment in Allied captivity. Eight told him they were beaten, but one acknowledged "they treated us pretty good."

Lee told the nine they will have to "work hard" for communism. The transfer was watched by officers of the five nation repatriation commission, which has jurisdiction over the reluctant prisoners.

Tuesday's delivery by the U. N. Command of bumpy POWs brought the total thus far delivered to the Indians to almost 2,000 North Koreans and 5,600 Chinese, about one-third of the number promised.

The Indian troops, hand-picked from crack regiments, quickly took the POWs into custody and processed them within a matter of seconds.

The board will meet Tuesday, Sept. 22, at 3 p. m. in the Selective Service office, located on the second floor of the Sedalia Post Office, according to Mrs. Vera Williams, clerk. Interviews will be conducted and regular business completed.

Frame House Vanishes, Owner Doesn't Know How It Was Done

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (P)—A three-room frame house disappeared over the weekend.

No one, least of all the owner, Fred Hutt, knows how it was accomplished, and police aren't investigating because the house wasn't reported stolen.

"Whoever got it just saved me a lot of trouble, for as I was planning to tear it down and use the lot for parking," said Hutt.

He thought perhaps a construction company working next door to the house had razed the building. But Tol Whittenberg, resident director for the company, quashed that report.

"I'm confident our men had nothing to do with the disappearance. We don't work on Saturday," Hutt estimated the value of the building at $400.

Adenauer Predicts Russians Will End Cold War If Can't Win

BONN, Germany (P)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer predicted today Soviet Russia will end the cold war when it realizes it cannot win the struggle with the free world and that its security is not threatened.

"Thus it is absolutely necessary for the West to continue its present policy of strength toward the East," the Chancellor said.

Addressing the 244 members of his Christian Democratic party who were elected to parliament in the Sept. 6 election, Dr. Adenauer said:

"The present foreign policy of my government will be unerringly pursued. This policy is based on close German cooperation with the free nations in their defense efforts against the threat of Soviet aggression."

Summer White House Labels Adlai Criticism 'Sound and Fury'; Truman Backs Stevenson

Ike and Adlai Will Confer On World Trip

Hagerty Gives Out Comment on Speech, Announces Confab

DENVER (P)—The summer White House today labeled Adlai E. Stevenson's criticism of the Eisenhower administration as "just sound and fury."

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty made the comment after telling newsmen that President Eisenhower and Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic presidential nominee, will confer in Washington sometime soon.

Stevenson will report to Eisenhower on the round-the-world tour which he recently completed. Eisenhower invited Stevenson to come in and see him sometime ago, and Hagerty said the president renewed the invitation when the former Illinois governor returned to this country recently.

Hagerty said Stevenson had accepted the invitation but that no date for the conference has been set. The President plans to end his Colorado vacation Friday or Saturday and fly back to Washington. Hagerty said the Eisenhower-Stevenson get-together will take place at the White House in Washington.

Meanwhile, Hagerty was asked for comment on Stevenson's Chicago speech last night. The Democratic leader said, among other things, that the Eisenhower administration amounted to "government by postnomination."

"That is just sound and fury," Hagerty said. "And the rest of the quote is 'signifying nothing' from Shakespeare's 'As You Like It.'"

The press secretary announced that Eisenhower will confer at his vacation headquarters here tomorrow with Secretary of Agriculture Benson. Hagerty said Benson had asked for the appointment and that the summer White House had no information on why he wants to see Eisenhower.

The President met today with four Republican senators. They were Sen. Millican of Colorado, Butler of Nebraska, Barnett of Wyoming and Mundt of South Dakota.

Hagerty told newsmen the session had no particular significance.

"All four senators are from this general area of the country and all separately requested appointments to see the President, so he asked them to come in at the same time," Hagerty said.

Millican, chairman of the conference of all Republican senators, conferred with Eisenhower at his vacation headquarters here last week. The senator said after that meeting he and the President had discussed, among other things, the legislative program which Congress will tackle when it reconvenes in January unless the President calls an earlier special session.

Millican said last week he doubted it would be necessary to call a special session to consider increasing the current 275 billion dollar ceiling on the national debt. Administration officials said in August, after the Senate Finance Committee shelved Eisenhower's request for a 15 billion dollar increase, that the President would try to avoid calling Congress back.

Hagerty said the legislative program for the regular session starting in January almost certainly would come up for discussion at today's meeting.

Among matters on the administration agenda is the bill to make Hawaii the 49th state. Butler, as chairman of the Senate Interior and Insular Affairs Committee, is in charge of that legislation in the Senate.

Eisenhower will end his Colorado vacation Friday or Saturday and fly back to Washington. He came to Denver Aug. 8.

Late yesterday the President drove to the outskirts of Denver to inspect Denver's Federal Civil Center, where 22 U. S. government agencies employ about 6,000 persons.

Eisenhower toured several of the federal buildings, including a huge General Services Administration (GSA) warehouse which stores thousands of items—from paper clip to huge tires—used by government agencies in the area.

Salome, Ariz. (P)—The infant son of a California couple rolled off the front seat of a parked car and drowned in a bucket of water, Deputy Sheriff W. D. Davis reported yesterday.

The victim was Jack Gabberly of Bell Flower.

Davis said that the Gabberlys had stopped for a cup of coffee at Bonanza, Ariz., 22 miles west of Salome. Their baby was asleep on the front seat and a bucket of water they had brought along to use on an ailing radiator was on the floor boards below. When they returned about 10 minutes later the baby was found, head down, in the bucket, Davis said.

Three other persons aboard the party were rescued, according to dispatches from Suva, capital of the islands, which are a British colony in the southwest Pacific.

The Fijian government said the village of Nukuli, in the Rewa River delta on Viti Levu, had been wrecked by the wave but that no one was injured there.

Truman's Attorney Says Harry Is Allowed To Spread Earnings

NEW YORK (P)—Attorney Samuel Rosenman says former President Truman will be allowed to spread over a six-year period income tax payments on the sale of his memoirs.

The attorney, representing Truman, said yesterday he was informed of the ruling about a week ago.

Published reports, which the Internal Revenue Service had refused to confirm or deny, previously had said the ruling would leave Truman about $165,000.

Navy Secretary Hails Atom Powered Sub as Great Weapon

GROTON, Conn. (P)—Navy Secretary Robert P. Anderson today hailed the atomic-powered submarine as "a marvelous new weapon which can bottle up enemy warships half a world away from American shores."

Anderson's talk was prepared for keel-laying ceremonies for the nation's second nuclear-powered undersea craft, the USS Seawolf. The first, the USS Nautilus, also is under construction here, and Anderson said she will have her builder's trials "soon—very soon."

The Cabinet officer said "our enemy may at any day enter the war with six times the number of submarines possessed by Germany at the outset of World War II, most of them better, harder to find and harder to sink."

The atomic-powered submarine, said Anderson, is able to travel thousands of miles under the surface at "better than 20 knots," and will give the navy "an ideal vessel to send under the sea to combat the enemy submarines lurking in the depths."

Envisioning other uses of the new craft, Anderson asserted: "We must counter the threat of an enemy blockade with a blockade of our own, taking advantage of the remarkably favorable configuration of the Eurasian coastline, and utilizing every weapon and device at our disposal."

"Our strategic frontiers lie not along our own coastlines, but in the rimlands of Eurasia, and our war operations must be designed to keep them there."

Tiger Skin Disappears From CMSC Museum

WARRENSBURG, Mo. (P)—A huge tiger skin of great sentimental value has disappeared from the Central Missouri State College museum here. School officials are wondering why anyone would take it.

The late Dr. E. L. Hendricks, president of the college until 1937, brought the tiger skin from India where he had served on an educational mission in the middle 1930s.

The tiger skin, in its high glass showcase, has been a familiar sight to thousands of students and visitors.

Dr. Hendricks, who was school president, said he hoped "the incident is a prank and that the skin will be returned."

Durkin Declares Ike Agreed to 19 T-H Amendments

ST. LOUIS (P)—Martin P. Durkin said today that two weeks before he resigned as secretary of labor, President Eisenhower personally "agreed with me" that 19 proposed amendments to the Taft-Hartley Law should be submitted to Congress.

Durkin, who quit the Cabinet last week with a charge that the White House had broken an agreement with him to sponsor the amendments, spoke before a meeting here of the metal trades department of the AFL.

He told the department he conferred with President Eisenhower in New York Aug. 20 when the President dedicated the Baruch Housing Project there.

"The President agreed with me that the 19 amendments should not be withheld, that they should be submitted to Congress," Durkin said.

A few days later, Durkin added, a White House spokesman notified him the administration would not be able to go along with the 19 proposed amendments.

Breaks Own Non-Stop Trans-Continental Light Plane Record

NEW YORK (P)—Max Conrad broke his own non-stop trans-continental light plane record yesterday when he flew over La Guardia Field 22 hours 24 minutes after leaving San Francisco.

Conrad's Piper Pacer monoplane raced past the control tower at 2:36 p. m. (EST), thus besting his previous mark—set in May, 1951—of 23 hours, 4 minutes, 21 seconds.

The 2,600-mile flight was sponsored by a national committee formed to observe the 50th anniversary of powered flight.

Question Foreign Spending

Demos Today Attack GOP Farm Policy

Former Secretaries Of Agriculture Say Ike Breaks Pledges

CHICAGO (P)—Democrats accused President Eisenhower today of breaking his 1952 campaign pledges to the farmers and predicted the reaction will cost Republicans control of Congress next year.

Three former secretaries of agriculture—Sen. Anderson (D-Mo.), Charles F. Brannan and Claude Wickard—spreadheaded an assault on GOP farm policies as the Democratic conference here rolled toward a climactic televised report to the nation tonight by Adlai E. Stevenson, the 1952 party presidential nominee.

Humphrey said he was not trying to prejudge the conclusions of the business-labor-agriculture advisory group or the banking committee.

But he said bluntly "The government must question both its right and its financial ability to continue to use taxpayers' money to finance investments abroad on a large scale in the development of competitive enterprise."

He did not elaborate on this. There have been some complaints from American business men that U. S. foreign aid funds have been used to build plants abroad which compete with them.

"Our scale of taxation is already too high, and to maintain a sound and honest dollar we must bring our own expenditures and revenues into balance," Humphrey said.

"We must continue to examine most carefully every proposal to spend money whether it is a proposal for spending at home or abroad."

"The maintenance of our credit and of a sound dollar is most important for foreign countries as well as it is for us here at home."

"Prosperity in the United States is essential to the prosperity in the rest of the world, and it is not only our duty but it is for the best interest of everyone concerned that we keep that fact always uppermost in our minds."

The secretary said that since World War II many foreign countries have looked to U. S. government funds to finance their economic development.

"Some countries have taken only limited steps to provide the conditions under which private investment will voluntarily move abroad on the basis of normal economic considerations," he said.

"More attention must be paid abroad to making investment attractive to foreign capital."

"The greatest strides in their development over the years are the countries which have provided the conditions under which private capital was most willing to invest."

Chairman Capehart (R-Ind.) of the banking committee opened the meeting with a call to Republicans to be "realistic" about the problem facing them.

"We Republicans have got the responsibility for running the government now. We have the responsibility for the prosperity of the people and the peace of the world," he said.

"There is no use in our sitting around and complaining about what's happened in the past. We have got to face the situation as it exists."

The facts of life, he said, included a 273 billion dollar national debt, huge government expenditures, and commitments around the globe.

"We can't have peace or prosperity throughout the world without employment and we can't have employment without trade," Capehart continued.

What we want to do in the United States is to sell more goods to the rest of the world. The world wants to sell more goods to us. We want to do it without hurting each other."

"That's our problem. It isn't easy to solve."

Stevenson, the party's 1952 presidential nominee, told cheering Democrats at a $100-a-plate dinner the Republican administration had made "hollow political gestures" abroad, interfered in affairs of other nations, permitted "smears at home" and had cut defense and foreign aid while tossing "threatening words" at the Communists.

Wickard said the Republican administration had demonstrated in nine months in office that it has "no enthusiasm" for farm price support programs.

The Republican administration has run out on its pledge to the farmer and the farmer knows it," Wickard declared.

Mrs. Willa Mae Roberts, Missouri national committeewoman and chicken raiser, told the delegates that "President Eisenhower has appointed as his secretary of agriculture a man who doesn't believe in price supports."

Humphrey Declares Serious Problem Arises Over U. S. Aid Going Abroad

WASHINGTON, D. C. (P)—Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey said today there is a serious question whether the United States should continue to spend public money abroad to build up "competitive enterprise."

Humphrey addressed a meeting of more than 100 leaders in business, labor and agriculture met with the Senate Banking Committee and high government officials to launch a study of how to stimulate world trade.

Humphrey said he was not trying to prejudge the conclusions of the business-labor-agriculture advisory group or the banking committee.

But he said bluntly "The government must question both its right and its financial ability to continue to use taxpayers' money to finance investments abroad on a large scale in the development of competitive enterprise."

Anti-Red Prisoners Attempt to Convert Communist Agents

INDIAN VILLAGE, Korea (P)—anti-Communist Korean prisoners in Indian custody today opened a campaign to convert the Communist agents who will try to talk them into returning to Red rule.

For 90 days starting about Sept. 25 the Communist representatives will try to change the minds of Korean and Chinese prisoners who refuse to go home.

But today the Koreans hoisted over their stockade banners reading:

"Red explainers, now is the time for you to turn out as anti-Communists if you want freedom."

Takes Drastic Step To Get Gas for Car

ALAMO, Mich. (P)—A motorist who ran out of gasoline a mile east of this southwest Michigan community hit on a novel plan when he found all the service stations closed at 3 a.m. Monday.

He punched a buzzer at the fire station, and explained later to a sputtering fire chief Ray Zantello that he hoped it would "get somebody up."

It roused Chief Zantello, his 10 volunteer firemen and most of the community—but the motorist got his gasoline. And in the excitement no one remembered to get his name.

4-H'ers Look To State 4-H Club Roundup

With State Fair and District Round-Up contests completed, 4-H members are turning their attention toward State Round-Up to be held in Columbia on Friday, Sept. 25.

It is at this day of contests that the winners of the five Missouri districts will compete for state championships. Pettis County will be representing the southwest district in three contests.

Francis Norfleet of the Prairie Ridge 4-H Club is the district winner in dress review (over 14 years) at the Clinton contests. The clothing and food preservation judging teams from Pettis County were also district winners at the State Fair. Eleanor Van Dyke (South Abell 4-H), Christine Silsby (Georgetown 4-H), Mary Schwartz (South Abell 4-H), are on the clothing judging team. On the food preservation team are Lorene Klein (Walnut Grove 4-H), Wanda Zeiger and Bonnie Gorrell (both from Van Natta 4-H).

Participating in the other judging contests on the district basis are the following: home furnishings, eighth place, Joy Rumsey (Welcome In 4-H), Mary Ruth Mittlehauser (Brown 4-H), and Mary Lou Brown (Brown 4-H). Food preparation team was declared ineligible because one team member did not compete. However Ruby Klein (Walnut Grove 4-H) and Betty Jane Walk (Hughesville 4-H) judged. Betty Jane was high scoring individual in the contest.

The vegetable team placed fourth with Helen Rugen (Lamine 4-H) and Donald and Joe Welliver (Flat Creek 4-H) comprising the judging team.

Jimmy Monsees (Smithton 4-H) participated in the dairy judging contest compiling 561 points.

Pettis County 4-H'ers participating in the district round-up at Clinton ranked as follows:

Darrel Todd (Longwood Neighbors 4-H) red ribbon in home economics demonstrations; Linda Turner (Maplewood 4-H) blue

Miss Bredehoeft Recently Weds Melvin Hemme

At 5 o'clock in the afternoon of August 30, Miss Elda Bredehoeft, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Bredehoeft, Emma, became the bride of Mr. Melvin Hemme, son of Mrs. Adolf Hemme, Sweet Springs, at the Holy Cross Lutheran Church in Emma. The Rev. William Hepting performed the double ring ceremony before an altar banked with bouquets of marigold and cosmos and lighted tapers.

Mr. Erich Bredehoeft, brother of the bride, played a program of appropriate wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length dress of white Chantilly lace and tulle over satin. The fitted lace bodice was fastened down the back with tiny buttons. She wore a fingertip veil and carried a bouquet of red roses on top of her white Bible. Her rhinestone necklace and earrings were a gift of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Donald Wilkens, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, wore a strapless gown of orchid tulle over taffeta. She had a matching stole and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

Miss Charlene Hemme, Sweet Springs, wore a yellow gown styled identically to the matron of honor's. She carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

Mr. Donald Wilkens served as best man and Mr. Wallace Bredehoeft, cousin of the bride, was groomsmen. Mr. Lester Bredehoeft, brother of the bride, and Mr. Clarence Elber, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, were ushers. Mr. Bredehoeft also lighted the candles preceding the ceremony.

Carolyn Ann Bredehoeft and Vila Jane Bredehoeft, cousins of the bride, were flower girls. Gladys Jean Bredehoeft was ring bearer. All wore floor length formal of green tulle over taffeta with matching half bonnets.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Bredehoeft chose a navy and white dress with black accessories. Mrs. Hemme was attired in a black and white dress with black accessories. Both mothers had white carnation corsages. Following the ceremony a reception for over 200 guests was held at the home of the bride's parents.

For traveling the bride chose to wear a dress of maroon and black with black accessories.

After a trip to Nebraska and Iowa they are now at home on a farm near Sweet Springs.

Disappearance of AP Employee Shows That Reds Are Closing In

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
(ADVANCE) One night in February of 1951 the Prague radio broadcast that a policeman had been shot to death near Charles Square in downtown Prague. The killers had escaped. The public was asked to tell the police anything known about them.

In that killing, I saw only one item in the day-by-day grist of news that passed through the office. Actually, it was an event that was to wield an enormous influence on my own life.

About a month later Mrs. Hana Svoboda came into the office. She was the wife of Thomas Svoboda, one of my translators, and the mother of his baby daughter. She was looking for her husband, and she was weeping.

He was off that day, and nobody in the office had seen him. His wife, who had a clerical job and had worked herself during the day, would say only that he had left the apartment where they lived with her parents, and had not come back.

Svoboda never came back to work, either. I reported his disappearance to the Ministry of Information, which had approved his employment by The AP, and to the police.

But neither was any help in tracing him. And as I learned more about what had happened that day his wife had come looking for him. I was pretty sure I knew why.

"That Boy Out of the Country"

While Svoboda was in the apartment with his mother-in-law, a strange man had come asking for him. Svoboda had talked with the man briefly in an undertone, and then both had left.

As they walked down the street below, another man had fallen in behind them, and the three had vanished around a corner. That night, plainclothesmen had searched the apartment.

It seemed safe to guess that Svoboda was in the hands of the secret police. But, by virtue of the very nature of the secret police, it did not seem safe to say so — not out loud, anyway.

A few days after that, Paul Woydinek of my Czech staff said he had learned the trouble was that "that boy who's out of the country" had been connected with "some people that had something to do with the murder of that policeman."

I had never met "that boy who's out of the country." But I had heard a lot about him.

He was a chum of Svoboda's, from college days, a young Czech refugee who lived in Paris and was in and out of Czechoslovakia from time to time.

Woydinek Vanishes

It was fairly clear to me that he had crossed the border illegally. But I was unaware of whatever else he might be doing. In fact I did not even know his name.

In front of Stalin portrait, William Oatis was quizzed by Czech official calling himself "The Boss." Sketch is by AP Artist Ed Gunder.

I had heard of him first from Nathan Polowetzky, my predecessor in charge of the Prague AP bureau. Polowetzky was expelled from Czechoslovakia on grounds of "unobjective reporting" and came back to London in April, 1950, while I was waiting there for a visa to go into that country.

In talking with me about his work in Prague, he spoke of "a little guy" — he did not mention any name — that had given him news, a man that came from Paris but seemed well informed on doings in Czechoslovakia.

After I got to Prague I heard from Czech employees that this man had given Polowetzky a story the ministry of information had cited as an example of "unobjective reporting" — a factual story on a coal mine strike in the Bohemian town of Kladno.

Woydinek did not show up for work April 2. I went to his room with an interpreter and found it sealed with paper tape. A neighbor told us what had happened.

About 6:30, as Woydinek was getting ready to go to the office, six plainclothesmen had walked in. Three had led him away. The other three had stayed, searched the place and sealed it.

Exit Peter Muntz

Since Svoboda's arrest, we had seen strange men around our office. One, peering out from behind secretary, telephone the office and speak Czech with the alleged telephone repairman. He told her exactly what he was doing to the machines, and we decided he was no impostor — and no policeman.

"Why Should You Worry?"

Richard G. Johnson, the vice consul, went with me to my office. The night watchman was still there. The printer repairman — whom I recognized immediately when I saw him, though I had not recognized his voice — was just leaving. Muntz was nowhere in sight.

Johnson said he could do nothing for him because he was a Czechoslovak citizen. "Now if you were to get arrested," he added — and I gathered that in that case he could take a hand.

That afternoon I went to Dr. Rudolf Popper, head of the press section of the Ministry of Information.

"Three of my employees are missing and I think they've been arrested," I said. "Am I going to get arrested?"

The swarthy, black-haired little man who looked something like a thin Pierre Laval, asked me if I had a guilty conscience. I said, "No."

He leaned back in his chair in the tired way he had, looked down his face at me and said, "Why should you worry? You have semi-diplomatic status."

A Big Black Car

It was true that my official accreditation gave me something like diplomats' extra rations. But it was not true that it granted me diplomatic immunity from arrest.

That was Friday. On Sunday at about 10 a. m., I drove out of the public garage where I kept the office car and turned a corner on my way back to the hotel. In my rear view mirror, I saw another car pull away from the curb behind me.

It was a big, black, streamlined Tatraplan, a Czech model commonly used by the secret police. It kept a half block behind me. Was it following me? I would see.

Instead of going straight to the hotel, I made a detour around a block. The Tatraplan followed me all the way. When I parked in front of the hotel, it parked about a block behind.

I hurried inside, picked up my key at the desk and dashed upstairs, two steps at a time, to my room on the third floor. I bolted the door and stood there with cold terror stabbing into my stomach. I decided to go to the embassy. That was U. S. territory, and Czech police could not reach me there. Without thinking to pick up even pajamas and shaving kit, I set out.

Race To The Embassy

There were two ways from stairway to street — one through the front entrance, the other out a side door and down a passageway. I chose the second as the safer.

It was not necessary. Nobody recognizable as a detective was either in the lobby or out front. I slammed the car door and drove off. Down the street, the Tatraplan also pulled away from the curb.

Once I was in National Avenue, I had a straight stretch of almost a mile down past the National Theater and across the Vitava river. Then a turn to the right and another mile's drive would bring me to the hilly side street on which the embassy fronted.

My shadows — there were two men in the car behind — kept a discreet distance till after the turn. Then they started gaining on me.

I speeded up, trying to steer clear of the car tracks in the narrow brick street and wondering how it would be to blow a tire just then.

They speeded up, too, despite heavy traffic. At length, the Tatraplan was the third car behind me. But a few seconds later I turned up the hill and parked opposite the embassy.

Two Shadows

I looked back. The black automobile had not followed me into the side street. I ran across to the embassy gate. And for the first time in many minutes I felt safe.

Sgt. Harry Morrissey of the military attaché's office was on guard duty in the front office. I asked if the counselor, Thompson, was in. He said everybody had gone on a picnic except Ambassador Ellis O. Briggs, who was ill at home.

"Do you want to talk to the ambassador?" he asked.

"No," I said. "I won't bother him."

I returned to the office. Another black Tatraplan picked up my trail and followed me all the way, parking up the street from the office.

I walked back and looked at the two men seated in it — a little bald fellow with a fringe of gray hair and a thin, swarthy youth who looked Italian — both of them in shirtsleeves. I said, "SIB?" (That is the Czech abbreviation for the official name of the secret police — the Státní Bezpečnost (State Security).) The dark young man rotated an index finger beside his right ear. It was a gesture that means, in any language, "You have wheels in your head."

That evening I was lying on my bed at the hotel when Thompson telephoned, back from the picnic day — Monday, April 23, 1951 — and anxious to know if I was all right. I told him I would see him and arrested me.

But I did not. Because the next For Ambulance Service Ph 8

Merry-Go-Round
Durkin's Exit Prompted By
GOP Unfulfilled Promises

By Drew Pearson
The resignation of Secretary of Labor Martin P. Durkin last week should have come as no surprise to Merry-Go-Round readers. On June 4, 1953—nearly four months ago—Drew Pearson reported that Secretary Durkin was almost certain to resign from the Eisenhower cabinet because of friction with anti-labor elements of the administration. "When he gets to cabinet meetings," Pearson reported, "Durkin sometimes finds other cabinet members in advance, gets the impression that certain matters have been decided before his arrival." Later in July, Pearson also stated that "Secretary of Labor Durkin gets such a run-around at the White House that he can't even see assistant President Sherman Adams, must deal with third-string Assistant Bernard Shanley."

WASHINGTON—The president turned on all the Eisenhower charm for a full thirty minutes trying to persuade Martin Durkin to remain in the cabinet. But the man who became famous as a result of the wise crack, "eight millionaires and a plumber," stood pat.

"I am schooled in the trade-union philosophy that when you make an agreement you live up to it," declared Durkin.

"You are asking me not to resign, Mr. President, but my answer must depend on whether you are willing to go along on the nineteen points that were once agreed to," the secretary of labor continued.

When Eisenhower replied that he would not go along in approving all nineteen amendments, Durkin concluded:

"Since your answer is 'no', Mr. President, I am sorry to say that that's my answer also."

When Herbert Brownell, Eisenhower's chief political adviser and attorney general, selected Durkin for the cabinet, he hoped to split the American Federation of Labor off from the CIO completely, force a sizeable chunk of the trade-union management back into the GOP.

Durkin's Impasse

However, Durkin, a permanent union payroller, was little impressed by the way he was carefully excluded from most of Eisenhower's top policy decisions, and he made few efforts therefore to sell the Eisenhower administration to the ranks of labor.

About three months ago, just before Senator Taft's ailment took its fatal turn, the president invited Durkin to the White House and asked him what was troubling him. Durkin told the president that union leaders were insisting that the president fulfill his pledge to amend the Taft-Hartley Act. Eisenhower then agreed. This was when White House counsel Bernard Shanley began working on the 19 amendments to Taft-Hartley which Durkin referred to in his last talk with Eisenhower.

The plan that emerged was laid on the president's desk the week before Senator Taft's death. Eisenhower gave the draft his approval, prepared to send it to congress. It was even printed in final form and circulated to top leaders in congress. But at this point the complete text of the Taft-Hartley message was leaked by an administration leader to the Wall Street Journal. Durkin considered the leak deliberate and calculated to bring a storm of pressure from big business. It did. Old business friends of Eisenhower's accused him of kowtowing to labor.

Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks, a savage foe of the unions, vigorously protested. Vice President Nixon came whizzing down from Capitol Hill. He told the president the White House action on Taft-Hartley soon after Taft's death would be an affront to Taft's memory, would anger Taft's friends, and that no changes in the Taft-Hartley law would be approved.

Businessmen who had supported Eisenhower in the last campaign protested direct to GOP National Chairman Len Hall. Finally Eisenhower retreated.

Meanwhile, August dragged on and September's annual convention of The American Federation of Labor approached. Durkin, who was a delegate to the convention, knew he would have to face his old labor colleagues. He was warned by top A.F. of L. leaders that he might face the possibility of being booed by his own union brothers. Finally the labor secretary resigned.

FDR, Jr., For Governor

While Democrats in Chicago are working to pull the party together, Democrats in New York are on the verge of pulling the party wide apart—in a situation which later might influence the presidency of the United States. They are balloting in a bitter primary to pick the Democratic candidate for mayor of New York.

Mayor Vincent Impellitteri and State Senator Robert Wagner, son of the late great U. S. senator by that name, go to the polls today (Sept. 15) in a battle which is much more important than a mere political tug-of-war between two men.

Two Issues Are Involved:

1. A clean-up of the Democratic party in New York City.

2. A maneuver by Franklin Roosevelt, Jr., for the governorship of New York. If he succeeds there might later be another Roosevelt in the White House.

What's happened in New York is that the Democratic party has gone stale. The elder new dealers, such as Boss Ed Flynn of the Bronx, have died. The conservative old dealers, led by men like Jim Farley, are out of step with the liberal wing, led by Senator Lehman, Averell Harriman, young Bob Wagner and Roosevelt.

Farley has never been able to capture control of New York City politics. But if he can put across Mayor Impellitteri for another term, his chance of controlling the governorship in the New York delegation to the next Democratic convention increases.

Dewey Vs. FDR, Jr.

That's the real goal—the governorship and the powerful new York delegation to the next nominating convention.

Therefore, if young Bob Wagner loses in today's balloting, you can write it down as certain that Roosevelt, Lehman, Harriman and Wagner will bolt the right-wing Democrats and

Bed-Wetting Habit Can Be Eliminated With Proper Care
By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.
Inability to hold the urine at night, commonly called bed-wetting and medically called enuresis, is normal during the first year or two of life. However, when control of the urine during sleep is not mastered by the time a child is about a year and a half old, or if bed-wetting develops later on in life after being absent for several years, it causes a great deal of emotional distress as well as physical discomfort.

There are some definite nerve conditions and a few diseases of urinary tract itself occasionally responsible, but the vast majority of older youngsters who suffer from bed-wetting seem to be in perfect physical health.

If no physical cause is found, enuresis becomes largely a psychological problem. In some cases continued bed-wetting appears to be the result of a sort of resentment usually directed towards the parents.

Physical punishment is certainly not the answer to the problem. The fact that enuresis almost invariably occurs during sleep indicates that it is not done purposely and therefore punishment would not be of the slightest benefit.

From the practical standpoint, what can be done for bed-wetting? In some cases the aid of a psychiatrist should be obtained with the aim of getting at the basic mental cause. In some cases, however, more simple methods may suffice to help a youngster get over this unfortunate habit. It is usually advisable to cut out fluids of all kinds as much as possible after 3 or 4 o'clock in the afternoon. If the time of enuresis is about the same night after night, it is possible to wake the youngster up or set an alarm clock an hour or so beforehand.

Recently, a group of 42 victims of chronic enuresis at night, in whom any physical cause had been eliminated, were treated by being awakened immediately after the beginning of urination by automatic electric alarm. The purpose was to try to train them to wake up instead of to urinate whenever the pressure on the bladder increased.

Learned to Sleep

The difficulty was stopped in 38 of the 42 and most of them learned to sleep through the entire night. This, then, is another method which may be helpful in conquering this disturbing condition.

It has been claimed that three psychological reasons are most important: The first is that the youngster has not yet grown up with reference to water control; the second is that subconsciously the youngster wishes to return to or remain in the rather protected and irresponsible state of infancy instead of assuming the normal difficulties of his or her age.

Finally, there is the point which has been previously mentioned, namely that there is subconscious resentment against the parents because they have been too critical or have otherwise frustrated the youngster.

Here Is a List of Times Hubby Seems Poor Catch
By RUTH MILLETT
There are times when it seems to a wife her husband wasn't such a good catch after all.

This might be when she asks him for the sixth time—in the course of that many weeks or months—if he would please do something about a leaky faucet. This brings out the same old answer: "Does it have to be done this minute?"

When he seems to think that an occasional "How are you feeling, honey," is all that is expected of him when his wife is ill. The husband then expects hospital attention at home if he stays in bed with a cold.

When he tells his wife, whose housework and child-care day averages around 12 hours a day, seven days a week how hard his secretary works at her 40-hour-a-week job.

When he acts grouchy or disgruntled in front of one of her gossiping friends.

When he never puts anything away himself, but always complains if he can't lay his hands on something the minute he wants to use it.

When he says of the TV actress who used to be a screen favorite of his, "Boy, she sure looks old" and his wife realizes with a start that she and the actress are just about the same age and she had just been thinking how young the actress looked.

Other Taboo Remarks

When he tells a hostess, "This is the best chicken I ever ate" when fried chicken is a specialty of his wife's.

When he asks: "Why didn't you tell me?" Then he finds out his wife was discussing a subject while he made a pretense of listening as he read his newspaper.

When he forgets her wedding anniversary and instead of being contrite blames her for not having given him some gentle hints ahead of time.

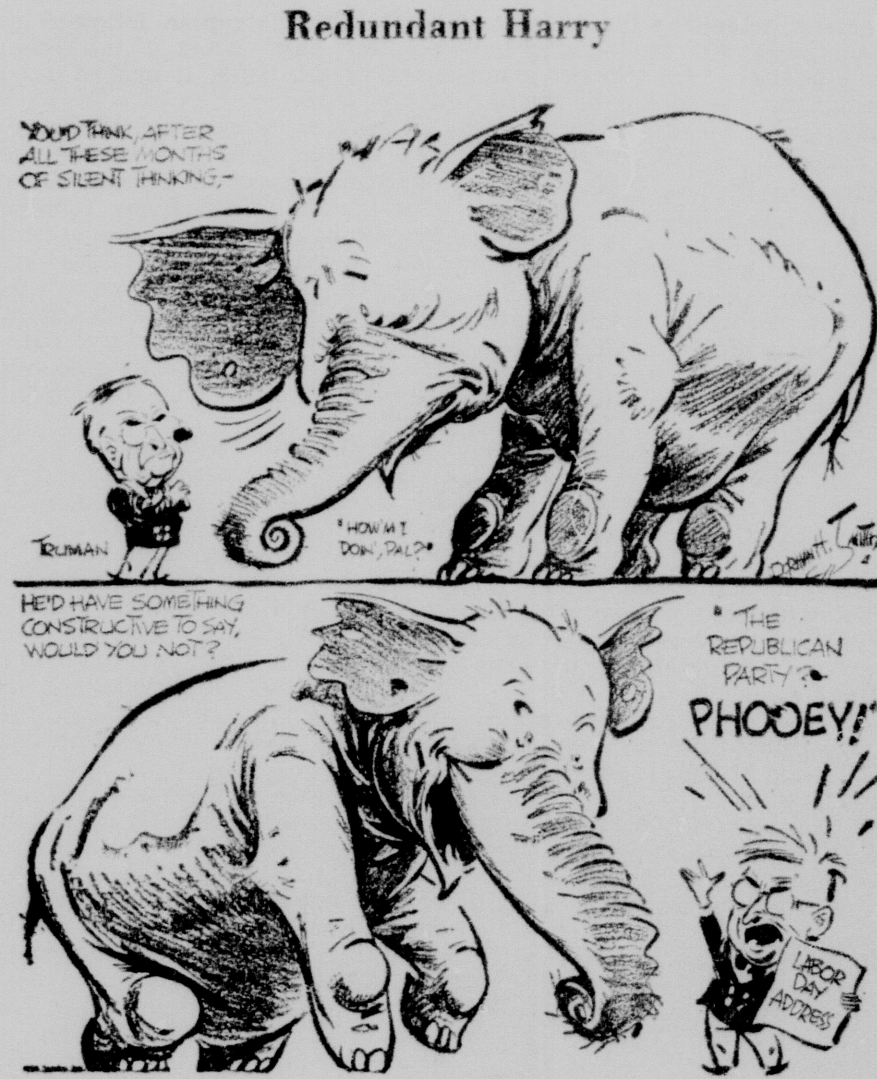

When, yearning for an extravagant declaration of his love, she asks him if he loves her and he answers: "I married you didn't I?"

line up with Rudy Halley, liberal candidate for mayor.

Halley, who used to be Senator Kefauver's crime committee counsel, has been a lifelong Democrat. And the big pay-off is that, in return for Democratic support in the New York City election, Halley would swing liberal party support to Franklin Roosevelt to become governor of New York.

Note—This is one factor Eisenhower has to consider in appointing the next chief justice of the United States. If Governor Dewey goes onto the supreme court, the best Republican vote-getter in New York state is removed from politics, and the state is likely to go Democratic. Eisenhower has already indicated his worry over winning New York in 1954, even called Dewey to Washington and asked him to run, in order to strengthen the ticket and help insure a GOP majority in the House of Representatives.

The World Today—Lambast GOP, But Not Ike

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON —The Democrats' ability in lambasting the Republican administration while side-stepping criticism of President Eisenhower himself was the only unusual thing about their first day's meeting in Chicago.

They are using Chicago like a gymnasium: To flex their political muscles and start training for the next big contest with the Republicans, the congressional elections of 1954.

What they had to say about the Republicans, while perhaps distinguished for its fervor and unanimity, was hardly more than the Republicans had had to say about them for the 20 years leading up to the 1952 elections.

For more of the time since last year's elections the Democrats, considering what they had been called for two decades, were extraordinarily restrained in criticism of the Republicans.

This was a situation which made many wonder not so much about the restraint itself but how long it would last. It began to melt in earnest as Congress finished its first session under the Republicans in August.

The Democrats claimed to be rescuers of Eisenhower from disaster at the hands of his own Republicans on some of his most important programs. It was not until Labor Day that the Democrats as a party began to get back into the natural political groove.

On that day former President Truman opened up in Detroit, after months of silence, with a "give 'em hell" speech. That was the biggest leak up to then, in the good ship harmony.

The ship sank yesterday in Chicago when speaker after speaker, but particularly Truman, Adlai Stevenson and Sen. Douglas of Illinois, set the pattern for what can be expected from now until election day in November 1954.

But the absence of direct criticism of Eisenhower was so obvious that Stephen A. Mitchell, Democratic National Committee chairman, was asked about it on an MBS Radio program last night.

Mitchell said, "I don't think there ever was any disposition to go after Eisenhower personally. I certainly hope we never will be guilty of the personal attacks like those that were made on Truman and Roosevelt."

It is difficult to believe Mitchell's hope will not be dashed by at least some of the Democrats running for office in 1954 if they think an attack on Eisenhower will do them any good.

In fact, Eisenhower's safety from personal attack in the coming political year may be in direct proportion to his popularity with the public, or his loss of it. Attacking a popular hero might not be bright politically.

Mitchell showed he was not unaware that Eisenhower's popularity may be the guiding factor in how the Democrats treat him. He said on the same radio program he believes Eisenhower's popularity is waning.

This may be only wishful thinking on Mitchell's part. He expressed it as a thought, not as a fact. It may not be a fact at all. Because it may not be a fact, the Democrats at Chicago may have felt that until they see more evidence of it they'd better make a detour around the President.

But, since the Democrats have started slamming the Republicans, and since in politics one word leads to another, there's no telling now when Eisenhower may become a Democratic target.

And once Eisenhower himself becomes a target then will begin one of the most interesting chapters in his fabulous career: How will he stand up under direct personal criticism and how will he react to it?

He had to take some in last year's campaign, but so far in his military career and in his first eight months in office he has been spared almost wholly the brickbats which have been the common lot of any inhabitant of the White House.

It was not only his immense prestige as a national hero which saved him from barbed thrusts. Through his own policy of avoiding any name calling or personal recrimination he has put himself in a position where he has been spared almost wholly the brickbats which have been the common lot of any inhabitant of the White House.

Three suspects were being held at Hermann in connection with that and another holdup.

The teacher of the first grade in one of the schools told the little tots where to hang their coats, when to cross the street, and the many other instructions that she always gives to the new pupils starting to school for the first time. Then she said: "Are there any questions?"

A small boy said he had something he wanted to say, and the teacher told him to go ahead.

"Well," said the little boy, "I just want to say I am glad I am here because I want to learn to read and write."

ROSE's Last Summer
by Margaret Millar
Copyright 1952 by Margaret Millar. Read by arrangement with the publishers, Random House, Inc. Distributed by NEA Service.

THE STORY: Haley Dalloway, first husband of Rose French, forgotten movie star, believes Rose was murdered, even though there is no evidence that she was. He visits Frank Clyde, a welfare worker who knew Rose.

XII
THE reference to Bernard in Frank Clyde's report was a straight quote from Rose: "Bernard was the smartest little dog you ever saw. Frank, that dog could read my mind better than you can. Bernie could always tell when I didn't like people, he'd snap at them. Once he bit the headwaiter at the Ambassador. I had to pay $300 damages. I've never set foot in the Ambassador since. It was the principle of the thing—$300 for a lousy little dog bite."

Dalloway looked up, still frowning. "This can't be the right Bernard."

"Try the Phil reference," Frank said. "Page 89."

Page 89 began with Frank's own words.

"Patient arrived in a depressed mood, dressed carelessly, hair uncombed. Complained of a sleepless night. . . . She seemed afraid. After a time she admitted this."

"Patient: 'I had the screaming meemies last night. I woke up around 4 a. m. and it was dark, pitch dark, and quiet. I had the feeling that I was alone, absolutely alone, that everybody else in the whole world had died and there was just me left in that awful quietness. And then gradually I realized it wasn't so quiet, I could hear the sea. My window was open and I could hear the sea very faintly, that terrible incessant noise, I hate it. It reminds me of Phil.'"

"He was her third husband."

"Patient: 'Phil went out in his sailboat one day and never came back. The sea got him. It's going to get me if I let him.'"

"Note: Patient shows no fear of water in general, only the sea, which she refers to when she is excited as a 'him.'"

"I asked her why she believed the sea would get her."

"I bought him that sailboat for his birthday. I was crazy about Phil, he was always nice to me, never played me for a sucker like Hamman and I wasn't afraid of him the way I was afraid of Dalloway."

Dalloway closed the report and put it on the nearest table with a decisive little slap. His face, which was normally ruddy, had taken on a purplish tinge around the cheekbones.

"Oh, you mustn't take that too seriously," Miriam said.

He paid no attention to her, keeping his eyes fixed on Frank. "I'd like to read that report, all of it."

"I'm sorry, you can't."

"Professional ethics?"

"Partly that. Mainly, though, because I think it might be harmful to you."

"I'm not a vulnerable child, you know."

"None of us knows how vulnerable we are until we're tested."

"I've been tested by experts."

Frank Clyde did not reply. He simply replaced the report in the manila folder and retied the tapes.

DALLOWAY smiled, hoping it made him look unconcerned. "Naturally, I was curious as to what Rose had to say about me. Now tell me about the Goodfields, what do you make of them?"

"Fairly standard," said Frank Clyde. Dominant mother, rebellious daughter, weak sons. Ethel, the wife, probably picked out by the mother."

"Greer thinks she's feeble-minded."

"She may give that impression while she's under Mrs. Goodfield's thumb. But when the old lady dies, Ethel will assume the Mrs. Goodfield's role."

"I'm thinking it, you're thinking it, we may as well say it. Those Goodfields had better be investigated, from top to bottom," said Dalloway.

"By whom?"

"I've done what I could. The trouble is, I can't go around trailing people and asking them questions. I'm too conspicuous for one thing." He gave his artificial arm a contemptuous tap. "For another, I've had no experience in investigation work," Dalloway paused. "You have."

"What's your interest?"

"I'd just like to find out for certain if Rose was connected in any way with the Goodfields. If she was, maybe Lora was too."

"Was?"

"Was," Dalloway repeated, grimly. "I have a feeling that my daughter is dead."

"Have you any reason for thinking that?"

"One. But it's a good one. She hasn't written to me asking for money. No, I'm not being humorous. Lora is incapable of supporting herself. She's never had a job that lasted more than a day, and in spite of her fancy talk she's as incompetent as a 3-year-old." Dalloway paused again and cleared his throat. "I'm willing to pay you liberally for your services."

Frank and Miriam exchanged glances.

"You have," Frank said at last, "touched us in a tender place. What are you asking me to do and for how much?"

FOR $150 go up to San Francisco and find out everything you can about the Goodfield clan. The price I'm willing to pay doesn't include any expense account, so you can go up any way you choose—train, plane, car, with or without Mrs. Clyde—depending how much you want to save."

"Well, I'll do my best." Frank sounded puzzled. "I wish my instructions were a little more specific."

Hal Boyle's Column-- Today We'd Like to Keep; Tomorrow Is a Great Unknown

NEW YORK —How do you start the day?

Each day is handed to us with a fresh cellophane wrapper around it, and you have to tear open the wrapper to get at the new 24-hour candy bar it encloses.

Have you ever noticed at the beginning of some days how you have to make up your mind whether the cellophane is getting stronger—or you are getting weaker? But somehow the package of the day is harder to rip open?

There are so many of us who don't like to let go of today at midnight, just when we get to know it as a friend, and therefore are reluctant to greet tomorrow because it is a fresh stranger, and we have a lazy-like wish not to have to start life all over again.

We all have this problem together—soldiers, salesmen, housewives, business executives, scientists and dreamers. By the time most days have ended we have solved them somehow, and we would like to postpone for a pause the impossible solution of tomorrow.

There should be a day between each day, a longer magical night in which to postpone the rushing dawn while a fellow utilizes the night to realize what he learned in the sunlight he has just been through.

We are bossed in our minds too much by the old, uneasy copybook dictum, "What you are to be you are now becoming."

It is rather depressing. It raises a dismal prospect of a seedy, disgruntled, bald-headed future. Yes, a future in which you face old age with paunch thrust bravely forward, one chin up, one chin down—and one chin saved to meet any other directional emergency.

It is rather flabby vista.

That is why the people who write books on how to live life better than it is childish to hate go to sleep and hate to wake up. But for the average person it is such a normal thing! What's wrong with going to bed laughing and waking up with a yawn? Could anything be more normal?

When you have finally teased open the wrapper of one day, finally got the nourishment inside, is there a law that requires you to arise early to attack the fresh cellophane wrapper around tomorrow? Perhaps you aren't hungry yet.

The way I like to look at a day is gradually, half an eye at a time. Some people like to leap up and take a brisk cold shower and think of all the golden deeds they are going to accomplish before the day burns out to black.

But so many mornings we awake to meet the same old dragons we never can altogether quell. Such as the crabgrass on our face, we shaved by the previous dawn's early night. Overnight it has sprung up again.

And there are other daily problems. But who can blame one who on some days would rather lie there and wait a while and see if maybe he couldn't grow a dandelion upon his chin, watch it turn into a white puff and blow the seeds of dream around the room?

It may never happen, but it is a wonderful way to start a day.

You never know at dawn what will flourish by nightfall. To me the best moments of all are those in which you cheat duty between the time the alarm clock rings and the time you finally reach out a shuddering warm toe and brace it against the cold floor of responsibility.

Emily Dickinson said it best when she wrote in the last century:

"A day. A day. Help, help! Another day!"

It is probably the most honest line in the English language. Everyone has felt that way, one time or another, and then got up and felt grateful for the sun.

Russell Lee Cooper

Russell Cooper Is Assigned Duty In Korea

Russell Lee Cooper, 20, formerly of Lincoln, landed in Korea on July 18. He is with the 40th Infantry Division's 140th AAA Battalion that went to Korea prepared to sweep the skies clean of enemy aircraft, only to find that the Red air force preferred to spend most of its time stunting behind the safety of the Yalu River.

That was all right with Russell, son of Mrs. Ada Cooper of Kansas City and brother of Glenn Cooper, route 2, Sedalia, as well as the rest of the boys, because it was such a short time before hostilities ceased and everybody could breathe easier after that.

There were a few times the Reds ventured south, but the UN Air Force discouraged any attempts by the Communists to attack infantry units. To put the tremendous firepower of the 140th to good use, its primary mission was temporarily changed from one of air defense to ground support. Rolling over rocky roads of mountainous front area, the AAA men provided the battle area with quad - fifties bring the deadly firepower of their machine guns to bear wherever needed.

Used in some cases as artillery they had fire direction centers, forward observers and all the tactical liaison of the larger guns. When a patrol got into trouble in no-man's land, the AAA machine guns swept into enemy ranks. The deadly efficiency of the heavily - armed half - tracks was demonstrated in an attack in the Kumhwa area when the 140th's guns accounted for more than 300 enemy dead and unknown number of wounded. After the enemy charge was smashed, guns laid down a deadly curtain through which the Reds were forced to retreat with heavy losses.

However, with the signing of the truce, the 140th is resuming its role as the defender of the skies above the infantry. Strategically located for defense against a surprise air attack, the units of the battalion are on a 24 hour alert. Cooper has been in service about five months.

Physicists Devise Cosmic Stopwatch

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Physicists at the University of California at Los Angeles have come up with a cosmic stopwatch.

The university said today the device will be used to measure the lifetimes of certain heavy mesons, particles from atomic nuclei, and are thought to exist for only billionths of a second. (One-billionth of a second is to a second as one second is to a hundred years.)

The physicists designed the instrument for cosmic ray studies under an army ordinance grant.

Jumpers Will Finish Exercise in Mass Leap

SEOUL (AP)—The 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team will close a two-week combat training exercise tomorrow with a mass paratroop jump near Seoul. More than 350 paratroopers will jump from C119 flying boxcars to a sandy island in the Han River below Seoul in an exercise dubbed "Operation Gung Ho."

Newspaper Story Aids Couple to Marry in Dunkerque, France

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A story which appeared in a Columbus newspaper this morning will enable a 24-year-old couple to marry on the other side of the world.

Bernard McCabe, a Columbus-born machinist now living in Dunkerque, France, wrote Columbus Mayor Robert T. Oestreicher that French tradition poses a problem for him and his fiancée, Alberta Gibon.

He said the mayor of Dunkerque told him they could not be married unless notice of the engagement were carried in the home town newspapers of both the prospective bride and groom. That's the custom in France, the mayor explained.

In today's paper, the Ohio State Journal takes care of the details. A copy of the story will be sent to Dunkerque.

McCabe made sure of a fast response. He enclosed two 15-cent airmail stamps in his letter to the Columbus mayor.

Drops War Clauses From Its Policies

NEWARK, N. J. (AP)—The Prudential Insurance Co. has dropped "war clauses" from many of its insurance policies since the end of the Korean fighting.

Men in military service or alerted for duty can now get policies without the restrictive "war clause" as long as they do not anticipate assignment to combat units in possible trouble areas, the company announced yesterday.

Also eased are restrictions on military and civilian aviation risks.

One of the most wonderful things about
'WONDER DRUGS'

...is that Blue Cross covers the full cost of virtually every one of them, regardless of how much is prescribed!

If you are ever a patient in a hospital, your bill for drugs and medicine could amount to a few cents, or to many hundreds of dollars... depending on your illness and the length of your treatment.

That's where the flexibility of the Blue Cross Plan comes in handy. No matter what the cost of the approved medicines and drugs used by a member while in the hospital, Blue Cross pays the bill!

APPROVED MEDICINES AND DRUGS ARE ONE OF YOUR MANY BLUE CROSS 'SERVICE BENEFITS'—They are one of the important reasons why your Blue Cross membership card is your best friend if you should ever need hospital care.

Because Blue Cross provides hospital services, rather than dollars, your Blue Cross service contract covers the major part of your hospital expenses whether your illness is slight or serious. In addition to approved medicines and drugs, your "service benefits" include a semi-private room, regular nursing care, regular and special diets, glucose, oxygen, and many other vital hospital services.

It's easy to see why nearly a million Missourians have chosen Blue Cross for their pre-paid hospital care plan.

Hundreds of thousands also belong to Blue Shield, the companion plan which helps you meet the cost of doctors' and surgeons' fees, X-ray, and other professional services. Only Blue Cross and Blue Shield are sponsored by your hospital and doctors... operated, in the public interest, on a non-profit basis.

Yesterday's Games-- Yanks Clinch Flag, Expect To Beat Bums

By BEN PHILGAR
AP Sports Writer

The record-breaking New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers will meet in the world series starting two weeks from tomorrow with the Yanks slightly favored to make it five straight two ways over the Dodgers in five meetings, five in a row over the National League.

Cagey Casey Stengel, who rewrote the record book by managing the Yankees to five consecutive pennants, says he thinks he has a good chance of continued success in the fall classic.

"This is a real good club with real good players," Casey said. "I'm relaxed after yesterday's flag clinching 8-5 victory over Cleveland."

"They tell me somebody has made us the favorite in the series and that's mighty nice of them. The way we've been playing, if we can keep it up, I can't see why we shouldn't be considered as having a great chance."

"But I don't think those fellows (the Dodgers) will be scared of the Yankees. They've been in the series before."

Casey said the Yanks will have to get good pitching to win but he implied that he was not awed by Brooklyn's tremendous hitting. He allowed as how his club could hit home runs in Yankee stadium and they probably could hit them in smaller Ebbets Field, too.

Stengel admitted he was glad the tension of the pennant race was over.

In the American League flag chase this season the Yankees held first place all but nine days. They were ahead by as much as 11½ games in late June and never out of the lead after May 11.

The Dodgers didn't start quite so early in the National League but they grabbed first place for keeps on June 28 and nailed down their flag 48 hours before the Yankees.

Both clubs clinched with 12 games left to play. Brooklyn played 142 games to win its flag, the Yankees played 140.

The Indians got five runs off pitcher Whitey Ford in the first three innings on five hits, four walks and a hit batter. But against the relief efforts of Tom Gorman, Bob Kuzava and Johnny Sain the Indians got a hit and run total of zero.

Meanwhile, the Yankees solved Early Wynn with a vengeance in the fourth inning, scoring four runs. Yogi Berra broke the tie in the seventh with a two run homer. Billy Martin drove in four of the Yankees' runs two doubles and a single.

Brooklyn lost its second in a row to the red hot Chicago Cubs who ran their winning streak to 10. Johnny Klippstein gave the Dodgers only three hits in the 3-1 victory.

In other action yesterday the Chicago White Sox beat Boston 10-6 despite a three-run pinch hit home run by Ted Williams; Washington whipped Detroit 6-1 and Philadelphia edged the St. Louis Cardinals 6-5.

Williams' homer was his 12th since returning from the marines.

3 Yank Pitchers In Top 6 Today For Earned Runs

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Yankees, pennant winners once again, today boasted three pitchers among the first six in the competition for American League earned run honors.

Figures compiled by the Associated Press show that southpaw Eddie Lopat leads the circuit with a 2.52 ERA. The 35-year-old veteran has given up 47 earned runs in 168 innings. He has won 15 games and lost only three.

Whitey Ford, another Yankee lefty, is second with a 2.61 average. He has permitted 55 earned tallies in 190 frames while racking up a sparkling 17-5 record.

Johnny Sain, who yesterday was credited with the Yankees' clincher, is sixth with a 3.05 mark.

In the National League, Warren Spahn, premier lefthander of the Milwaukee Braves, is on top with a brilliant .22 percentage. Spahn, the ERA leader in 1947 with 2.33, has allowed only 39 earned runs in 239 innings. He has 20 victories against seven setbacks.

Billy Pierce of the Chicago White Sox is third in the American League with 2.65 followed by Boston's Mickey McDermott at 2.87 and Virgil Trucks of the White Sox with 2.96.

Robin Roberts of the Philadelphia Phillies is the runner-up in the National League. The hard-working righthander shows 34 earned runs in 314 frames for 2.69. His won-lost record is 21-14.

Bob Buhl of Milwaukee is fourth with 3.11 and Brooklyn's Carl Erskine and Harvey Haddix of the St. Louis Cardinals are tied for fifth place, with 3.21 apiece.

Cards Get Breaks But Phils Win With Hits, 6-5

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Cardinals got a bunch of breaks but Philadelphia got the hits at Busch Stadium last night and the Phils came out of it with a 6-5 victory on Johnny Lindell's fifth-inning pitching.

The Phils jumped into an early 2-0 lead on Smoky Burgess' second-inning homer and a pair of singles around Earl Torgeson's third-frame triple.

An error and passed ball helped bring the Redbirds even in their part of the third.

After Vinegar Bend Mizell walked Solly Henus was safe on an error Stan Musial doubled, scoring Mizell. A passed ball on Burgess let Henus cross the plate and Musial scored on a single by Enos Slaughter.

Another error, this one on Stan Lopata, who took over when Burgess was chased for arguing too much, but the Birds in front. Lindell had two Cardinals out in the eighth, then walked Del Rice and Rip Repulski. Mizell missed the ball swinging and Lopata didn't do any better at catching it, so the bases were filled.

A sharp single by Henus drove in two runs.

The Phils colored four hits, one a double by Wyrostek, in the ninth, which along with a walk were good for three runs and the ball game.

The loss cut the Redbirds' hold on third place to 1½ games. The Browns were idle.

Nebraska Grid Team Named For Opener

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—As his squad approaches its opening game with Oregon here Saturday, Nebraska Football Coach Bill Glassford finds himself pretty well determined on his first unit and a bit mixed up on the second unit.

Glassford has some hopes of using two teams as units, each playing a full quarter. Also he is installing a new basic system for the Huskers—the single wing instead of the T formation. However, the T will not be wiped from the Nebraska book.

His opening lineup for the Oregon just likely will be:

The non-lettermen in this lineup would be sophomore Weddle, juniors Wagner and Glantz and senior Gonde.

Powers on the line are expected to be veterans Schabacker and Minnick, who won all big seven honors last year, and tackle Ted Connor.

The surprise Husker backfield player may be Bob Smith, 190-pound letterman who has done some fine work at the wingback post. This year Smith has more speed to go with his power.

Glassford is much better off for backs than for linemen—despite the loss of two dependable veterans back to Uncle Sam. He has fullback Ray Novak (215), left half Dirkes Rolston (170) and right half Dennis Korinek (172).

A six-win and four-loss record might be just what Nebraska will wind up with—possibly a split of the 10 games, with a conference rating of second or third.

At Columbia, Coach Don Faurot has scrimmages on tap today and tomorrow in preparation for the Maryland invasion.

Bob Burris, a hard driving second string halfback, has been promoted to the No. 1 unit at Oklahoma. He replaces Jack Ging, a seasoned player.

Players took only light drills at Kansas and Kansas State. Iowa State continued its work for South Dakota.

Memphis Car Dealer Is 1-Day Sensation Of National Amateur

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A tall, greying automobile dealer from Memphis, Tenn., Curtis Person, stood as the one-day sensation of the National Amateur Golf championship today. But the man who had caught the fancy of big-hearted Oklahoma fans was a long, lean, wisecracking Irishman from Dublin, Joe Carr.

Person provided the inevitable first-round upset—and the only one among 70 completed matches. He knocked out Don Cherry, the crowning Walker Cup player from Wichita Falls, Tex., 4 and 3.

Carr, the 32-year-old clothing manufacturer who beat Atlanta's Harvie Ward for the British title last June, put on one of the day's showiest performances to win his first match from Harold Foreman of Glenview, Ill., three-time Illinois state champion, 7 and 6.

2-Team Football Instead of Two Ga. Tech Platoons

ATLANTA (AP)—Two-team football will replace two-platoon football at Georgia Tech this year.

Coach Bobby Dodd said today he believes that is the best answer for Tech, anyway to the rules change which ended the era of free substitution and defensive and offensive specialists.

Tech, defending champion in the Southeastern Conference and the second-ranked team in the nation last year, has the talent to make it work. Dodd will have enough good boys for a third unit or for plenty of spot reserve strength.

Dodd has picked for his first string line six players who were defensive experts last year. The line, which averages 197 pounds per man, has Henry Hair and Sam Hensley at end, Roger Frey and Bob Sherman at tackle, Franklin Brooks and Orville Vereen at guard and Larry Morris at center.

Tech's starting backfield will be Peagor Rodgers at quarterback, Leon Hardeman and Billy Teas at halfback and Glenn Turner at fullback. They average 175 and, except for Rodgers, constitute the same fleet of footmen who held those posts on offense last year. Rodgers, a field goal and conversion artist, was Tech's No. 2 quarterback last season.

Cubs Try Three New Players In Series Against Phillies

CHICAGO (AP)—Five new players for the Chicago Cubs will be given trials during a three-game series with the Philadelphia Phils starting today.

The newcomers are shortstops Ernie Banks, 22, purchased from the Kansas City Monarchs, and Gene Baker of Los Angeles; outfielder Bob Talbot and pitcher Bill Moisan, both of Los Angeles, and pitcher Don Elston, Springfield, Mass.

HOT DOG!—Martin LaRosa proudly holds up two fine ribs he took from Central Park Lake in the heart of New York City. He competed with other youngsters in a Huck Finn contest sponsored by the Children's Aid Society. (NEA)

Sports Roundup--

Recalling the Day Babe Ruth Hit His Long, 60th Homer

NEW YORK (AP)—All day the crowds stand across the street peering through the bank windows at reproductions of pages of the New York Times for the past 100 years. It is an absorbing exhibit, including as it does the headlines and stories which heralded such historic events as the assassination of Abraham Lincoln and a 120-foot airplane flight at Kitty Hawk.

In the collection there is one sports page, dated Oct. 1, 1927, and the lead story relates how on the previous afternoon at Yankee Stadium a burly fellow named George Herman (Babe) Ruth had smashed his 60th homerun of the season into the rightfield bleachers. Almost invariably, that is where the crowd is thickest.

It had been next to the last game of the year for the Yanks of Manager Miller Huggins. They already had scored 108 victories and were a mile in front. Yet 10,000 fans had paid their way in on the chance they would see the Bambino break his own record of 59 homers set six years before.

Lefthander Tom Zachary, one of the best of the era, was Washington's choice to halt the Babe reporter (not identified in that day short of his goal. The Times of rare by-lines) says Tom bore down grimly, not wishing the distinction of serving up the record pitch.

So carefully did he work that the Babe walked on his first trip. Each of the next two times he singled. Twice the great man scored, and when he pigeon-toed to the plate in the last of the eighth the count was tied at 2-2. Shortstop Mark Koenig was on third, having tripled.

Ruth swung viciously at Zachary's first pitch, and missed. The second was a ball. The third, witnesses agreed, was a smoking fast ball, low and inside. The result, "whack" was heard throughout the park, and the crowd rose in thunderous acclaim as the pellet streaked almost on a line for the seats.

Curving fast toward the right, it passed about 10 feet inside the foul pole. Muddy Ruel, the Washington catcher, and plate umpire Bill Dineen said it was no wonder a foot inside when it landed halfway up the stands. As the Babe trotted around, spiking each bag carefully, Zachary flung his glove to the ground and looked toward his teammates for some sign of consolation. The Times man said

Stanky Sees Dodgers Taking World Series

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Predicting Brooklyn will win the World Series in six games, Manager Eddie Stanky of the St. Louis Cardinals says "if the Dodgers don't take the Series, they ought to be ashamed of themselves."

Stanky made the same prediction last year, when the Yankees won the Series in seven games.

The Cardinal manager rated the current Dodgers as a better all-around team than their previous pennant winners he has seen. He feels the Dodgers have improved more than the Yankees since last season.

Stanky, a former Brooklyn player, cited the Dodgers' power at the plate, their strong bench and their pitching.

Greater Use Of Controls On Farm Crops

WASHINGTON (P)—The Eisenhower administration may in effect have talked itself into greater use of crop controls next year than it prefers by taking steps at farm policies of the Truman administration.

Secretary of Agriculture Benson has a choice on whether to set up acreage planting allotments on the 1954 corn crop or to leave growers free to plant as much land to corn as they desire. Benson has said that as a general rule he dislikes federal controls on agriculture.

Allotments are less restrictive than rigid marketing quotas already approved by farmers for the 1954 wheat crop, in effect this and to be continued next year for major types of tobacco, and likely to be imposed on cotton next season.

Farmers may abide by allotments or ignore them, whereas violations of quotas are subject to stiff penalty taxes. In the case of allotments, only those who comply with them are eligible for government price support aid. Usually, the allotments greatly influence planting operations of most farmers.

Benson and several of his aides, in recent speeches, have sharply criticized former Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan because he did not invoke controls on wheat, cotton and other crops of which there is now a surplus. They said farmers would not now be confronted with surpluses and their attendant problems if the previous administration had used control authority available to it.

Recent hot, dry weather trimmed this year's probable corn crop enough to pull supplies below a level that would require Benson to invoke marketing quotas next year. Next month's production estimate may cut the estimated crop still more.

In the face of this situation, farm officials say there are good arguments for leaving corn completely free of controls another year. They say the drought in some parts of the country has reduced livestock feed supplies at a time when production of hogs, a major user of corn and grain feeds, is increasing.

Furthermore, the government could save several million dollars in administrative expenses if corn allotments are not set up.

Yet, officials say, the administration would then face the possibility that a bumper corn crop next year would create a corn surplus if controls are not used.

In that event, the administration would be subject to the same sort of criticism its farm officials have been directing at the preceding administration.

Preliminary work has been started on possible corn allotments, but a decision on whether to use them has yet to be made.

Czechs Announce Reorganization Of Red Regime

VIENNA, Austria (P)—Prague radio announced a sweeping reorganization of Czechoslovakia's Communist government today. The emphasis seemed to be on streamlining and centralizing operations rather than on purging disgraced officials.

Premier Vilem Siroky remained head of the government under President Antonin Zapotocky, but the "Siroky-style" presidium of premier and numerous vice premiers set up last February to control the government apparently was replaced by a three-man committee.

This new "high command," Prague Radio said, is composed of Siroky and two former presidium members, State Planning Chief Jaromir Dolansky and Defense Minister Alexei Cepicka, who become the new Cabinet's only vice premiers.

Along with Siroky and his two deputy premiers, Communist party Boss Antonin Novotny continued a major figure in the Czech setup. He remained first secretary of the party's central committee and thus retained control of the powerful party organization.

The reorganization was the first major shakeup in the Czech government since Zapotocky stepped up from the premiership on the death of President Klement Gottwald last March and Siroky moved into the premiership.

The shakeup follows months of widespread unrest in Czechoslovakia, including riots over food shortages and a drastic currency revaluation in May.

Celebrates Wedding With Reformatory Term

TIFFIN, Ohio (P)—A few minutes after his wedding yesterday, David Cleveland, 20, of Republic was on his way to Mansfield Reformatory, along with the bride's brother.

Cleveland and Kenneth Prindle, 21, were under sentence for burglary.

Permission was granted for the wedding ceremony in old Trinity Episcopal Church, near the Seneca County Jail. The bride was De Jones, 17, sister of Prindle.

Cleveland's term is for one to two years.

Bulgaria Empties Its Concentration Camps

ISTANBUL, Turkey (P)—Communist Bulgaria reportedly has freed an estimated 25,000 prisoners in a wholesale emptying of its concentration camps. The move apparently did not affect regular prisoners where another 75,000 persons are believed held.

Usually reliable sources who reported the release yesterday said none of the camp prisoners had ever been tried or convicted in court. The releases were said to have begun Aug. 1.

Detroit Studies Sales of "Continental" Studebaker

By a WALL STREET JOURNAL Staff Reporter

DETROIT—Studebaker, which was a big factor in setting early-postwar auto styles, may now be setting the pattern for the next few years.

Its 1946 model, designed with lavish use of glass by Raymond Loewy, was the first completely redesigned postwar car. The South Bend, Ind., concern made no further major change until its current 1953's, with these it introduced low, rakish "Continental" styling. Also designed by Loewy, the new model cost $27 million to introduce, double the 1946 cost.

A top Detroit stylist, employed by a rival manufacturer, says that the current Studebaker will affect the future looks of more competitive makes than the industry would like to admit. Most frequently, he said, he pointed to the new Lincoln Continental.

Confusion Comes Over New Law On Mental Cases

JOPLIN (P)—Confusion over a new state law on the handling of mentally ill persons reached a climax here yesterday.

Police released a 54-year-old woman who was described as mentally ill and in need of treatment. Because of the new law which took effect Aug. 29, no official would move to have the woman committed to the state hospital for treatment.

Probate Judge Russell Mallett said he could commit the woman to the hospital, but the law makes no provision for taking care of a patient during the days or weeks of waiting for space in the hospital.

Under the old law, mental patients usually were kept in local jails during that waiting period. The new law, however, prohibits the confinement in jail of any mental patient except because of, or during, an extreme emergency.

Judge Mallett, Sheriff George Hickam and city police said they had no authority to deal with mental patients in emergencies. The sheriff said he would try to put a mental patient in jail on a criminal charge if the patient appeared likely to injure himself or others.

The Jasper County Health and Welfare Organization said it had been directed by the state Department of Health and Welfare not to care for mental patients.

Second Air Force Boasts of Safety Record on Holidays

The Second Air Force, of which the Sedalia Air Force Base is a part, is boasting of a safety record regarding the return to duty of officers and airmen in a period which started on the Memorial Day holiday weekend and carried through the Labor Day holidays. The record is that not one officer or airman met with a fatal accident due to travel on the highways over Memorial Day, July Fourth and Labor Day holidays.

Maj. Gen. Frank A. Armstrong Jr., commander of the Second Air Force announced the record. "It is a wonderful feeling," he general stated, "to know that while hundreds of motorists ignored the rules of safe driving, our people continue to observe the safety principles we have been emphasizing."

Second Air Force Bases are: Barksdale at Shreveport, La.; Hunter at Savannah, Ga.; Lake

Pigeon Comes to Dinner

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — A pigeon dropped into the United Cigar Store in downtown Youngstown with a couple of buddies to lunch on peanuts spilled on the floor. Manager Lou Unger informed the pigeons they were not wanted around there, so the persistent pigeon's faint-hearted friends left. But the persistent one hopped behind a magazine rack. Then he found he was stuck there. Clerks saved a hole in the rack but the pigeon stayed on. After all, you can't starve a guest, so the clerks now put regular rations of peanuts and bread in front of the hole, waiting for the pigeon to decide to leave. Democrat - Capital Class Ads Are Workers You an Afford to Hire! Phone 1000.

Containing important developments in the history of Old Crow

SEPTEMBER, 1953

Old Crow makes history with a lighter, milder bottling at a lower price!

Daniel Webster
called Old Crow "the finest in the world."

More than a century ago, silver-tongued orator Daniel Webster lifted a tall, clay jug, sipped its contents, and almost without hesitation declared with thunderous certainty, "The finest whiskey in the world!"

As was so often the case Webster was not alone in his judgments on matters of public interest. Later, fellow-legislator Henry Clay tasted this self-same bourbon and from then on had it shipped regularly to him in Washington.

The whiskey in both cases was famed Old Crow—today, as always, "The Greatest Name in Bourbon."

Many other distinguished figures quickly joined Webster and Clay in registering a preference for Old Crow.

During these years Edwin Booth, Charles Dickens and the Marquis de Lafayette visited Versailles, Ky., and undoubtedly sampled James Crow's whiskey. Like these celebrated men of the past, you, too, will find Old Crow's quality above debate, its distinctive richness beyond description!

2½ gallons a day was Crow's original production

A physician by profession, a research chemist by training—James Crow considered his tiny distillery a laboratory in which he would produce a small but perfect yield of Kentucky whiskey. Here, in time, he created the brand that still bears his name—as perfect a bourbon as time and science could make it.

Today, you can sample this perfection...simply by asking for Old Crow!

MARK TWAIN VISITS THE OLD CROW DISTILLERY
The famous humorist considered Old Crow the finest of bourbons and went to see for himself how it was made.

To America's favorite humorist, Mark Twain, the making of fine whiskey was no laughing matter. Back in the 1880's he visited the Old Crow Distillery to see for himself just how his favorite Kentucky Bourbon was produced. Twain returned from Kentucky some weeks later with a working knowledge of distilling—and a sizeable supply of Old Crow.

One of Twain's biographers has remarked, "Mark Twain, as well as many other gentlemen drinkers of those days, laid in his supply of Old Crow as surely as he would order meal, sugar or flour for his storehouse."

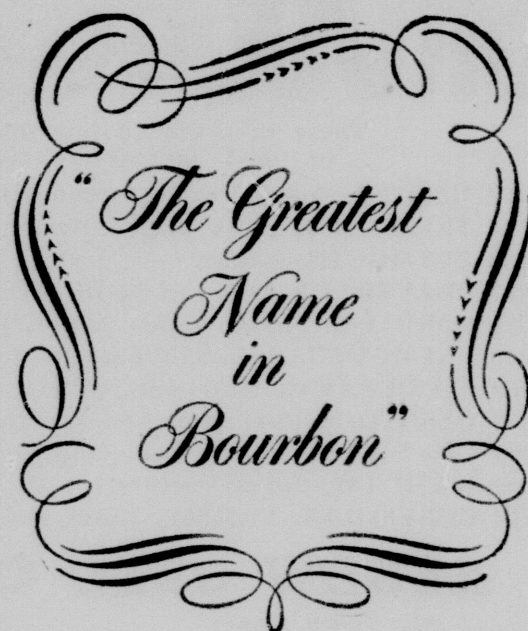

A SHIPMENT OF OLD CROW FOR THE "EUROPEAN TRADE"
The past century saw James Crow's whiskey carried by clipper ship to England, Scotland and other countries where it was hailed as America's finest.

Old Crow's international reputation began in the early Eighteen Forties when distinguished visitors to Kentucky like the Marquis de Lafayette first visited Versailles, Ky. Here, in the famous Watkins Tavern, they discussed the issues of the day with Kentucky's leading citizens and for the first time tasted James Crow's whiskey, distilled but a few miles away. For these noted men, a glass of Old Crow was one of the unique pleasures of Kentucky and America, and when they returned home, they often described the distinctive richness of a liquor unlike anything they had ever tasted—memorable Old Crow!

Thus the word travelled—and later so did the whiskey, by the newly invented "Iron Horse" to New York and Philadelphia and from there by fleet clipper ships to London, Glasgow, Paris and the major cities of the world. On both sides of the Atlantic gentlemen of taste found Old Crow's quality something to talk about.

Over the years, steam has replaced sail—but there has been no change in the overwhelming popularity of James Crow's whiskey. The world over, it is still judged "America's finest!"

You will find ample reason for this reputation in every bottle, every glass of Old Crow Straight Bourbon!

Now—there are two great bottlings of Old Crow!
The greatest name in bourbon meets the public demand for a lighter, milder prestige bourbon with an 86 Proof bottling—as a companion to its traditional 100 Proof Bottled in Bond!

This announcement is appearing in newspapers throughout the nation advising you and your fellow countrymen of the most unique development in the long and honor-studded history of Old Crow.

We say "unique" because now, for the first time, two entirely different kinds of bourbon drinkers can enjoy this famous old brand...those who prefer the 100 Proof Bottled in Bond and those who have always wanted a prestige bourbon, yet lighter and milder.

To meet the growing demand for a lighter bourbon, the famous Old Crow Distillery at Frankfort, Kentucky now offers an 86 Proof bottling of its world-renowned brand, and makes this available in addition to its celebrated 100 Proof Bottled in Bond. It is available at lower cost, too. For the resultant savings in Federal excise taxes and other costs of this bottling will be passed along to you.

Old Crow, as you know, has deep and historic roots in America. It's been over a hundred years since James Crow built his tiny distillery on the Kentucky frontier. Prior to his arrival, distilling was a crude and inaccurate process done after the manner of the old mammy's formula for bread-making by taking "a passel" of meal, "a passel" of malt, about "so much" water, boiled down until it was done. Col. Crow revolutionized this process by introducing scientific methods, and produced consistently a bourbon of such quality that it quickly achieved world renown.

Now with the introduction of this 86 Proof bottling many more thousands can join the ranks of celebrated Americans and lovers of fine bourbon everywhere who have made the oft-repeated statement that it is the finest Kentucky Bourbon ever put into glass.

The original springhouse still in use at the Old Crow Distillery

Free-flowing limestone water of a certain select type, James Crow early realized, is the secret of Kentucky whiskey. For ten years he examined the streams and springs of Kentucky's famous bourbon country—and in 1835 found the crystal-clear water he had been looking for, some miles below the headwaters of Glenn's Creek. Here Crow built his first stone spring house, and here Old Crow is still made today!
